The Old Reaper.
BY HELEN HUNT.
The sun had set, and in the autumn wind
The poplars shivered chill;
The harvest labor, which had clinked and dined
All day, was still;
But in the golden meadow, reaping slow,
An old man tottered to and fro.
His thin, bleached hair fell round his eyes
In pitiful vail; his trembling hand
Swung but a feeble bow; in dull surprise
Each homeward band
Of reapers stopped and lingered, wondering Why night stayed not his harvesting.
Beneath the silver moon the golden grain Seemed turn to silver as it fell, Falling so slow and measured, as if slain
By some strange spell
In hand of old magician bending there, Enchanting all the darkened air.
Noting with wistful eye the grain slow heaped, Noting the time by stars that sped, Till mid-night came, the old man staid and reposed.
And then with tread
That lingered, and with eyes that turned to look,
And look, his homeward path he took.
The sickle on his shoulder shone gleam
And still shadow threw before;
The moon broke up the clouds with sudden beam,
As through his door
He passed, and flashing just above his head
The sickle in great Leo spread.
"Ah, well-a-day," he said, and shivered cold,
"God's sickle in the sky shines bright.
Who binds its sheaves, its harvests count and fold,
Must reap at night.
And much I wonder if when grain escapes
It falls to earth in starry shapes."
Next evening all the golden meadow-wheat Lay still untouched, as it had lain
All day; while neighbor men, with rough-shod feet,
And silent pain,
Stood round the house where the old reaper lay,
Who in the night had passed away.

SAVANNAH, March 16, 1870.
Messrs. Jacob Lippman & Bro., Savannah, Ga.—GENTS: I have before me your esteemed letter of the 14th inst., containing various documents relative to your "German Bitters."
After a careful examination I must confess that your Bitters is really what you represent it to be, an old German recipe of Dr. Mit-terlich, of Berlin, Prussia. It will no doubt be excellent for dyspepsia, general debility and nervous diseases, and is a good preventive of chills and fever. I find it to be a most delightful and pleasant stomachic. I remain yours truly, (Signed) AUG. P. WETTER.

RICKLAND MILLS, Ga., March 22, 1870.
Messrs. Jacob Lippman & Bro., Druggists, Savannah, Ga.—GENTLEMEN: I have introduced your Great German Bitters here to my customers and friends, and I find better sale for it than any I have ever kept before. Those who have tried it approve of it very highly, and I do not hesitate in saying that it is far superior in value to any other Bitters now in use. Yours, respectfully, W. KIRKLAND.
